Arranging for a New State

Several members of the legislatures of Montana and North Dakota have just held a conference at Glendive, Montana, to a transpe for the segregation of Eastern Montana and Western North Dakota from their present, states and the creation of a new state, to be known as Montagu, extending from the Belt mountains in Montana to the Missouri river in North Dakota, comprising strictly a stock-growing section, 1,800 square miles in area. Glendive, being the caster of population and the grogation of the state, and the representatives are disgusted with the existing conditions in the castern portion of their state, and the people of eastern Montana with the corruptions of the western portion of their state, and the growing of the sestern port, leeve both wish for a change.
